Frank and open cooperation among the merchants will go a long way toward the success of the trades-day sale. That sort of cooperation that will prevent an individual from trying to put something over for his own benefit that will not benefit the sale as a whole.

Lamar school district will have a deficit of $2300 in their teacher's fund for 1920-21. And on top of that the people voted down an additional tax levy for school purposes. Most folks when they want to locate look for a place with first-class school advantages, but a lot of them don't want to pay for them or they allow personal prejudices to deprive them of material benefits.

Colt Born to Mare Mule.

For the first time in the history of the Montana live stock commission a colt has been born to a mare mule, says a dispatch from Dillon, Montana. Veterinary surgeons, horse breeders and producers of heavy work stock have scoffed at the prediction of the owner, but he now has the proof, and Dr. J. W. Butler, state veterinary surgeon, has upheld the owner of the mare colt in his statement that such a freak of nature is possible. Dr. Butler said that there are several instances in books on veterinary medicine in his office where this rare reproduction is mentioned. "It is the first time, according to the records in this office, that a mare mule has given birth to a colt sired by a horse, and is just one more instance of the wealth of knowledge which science lacks." The state veterinary surgeon, who was for years with the United States Department of Animal Industry, is making a personal investigation of the mule colt and its antecedents and will have the data compiled for the use of horse breeders and veterinary surgeons throughout the United States. The colt was born on a farm near Dillon, Montana, and the owner has asked that his name be withheld because, "I don't want to be plagued with a flood of fool questions." Dr. Butler, however, is leading the van of inquiring friends with questions fairly popping out of his head.—Paris Mercury

WHAT WE KNOW...

Our value to you is largely governed by what we know. Potatoes are potatoes; onions are onions; cabbage is cabbage; and you can judge them with your eyes the same as we do.

But all canned goods, manufactured articles and meats are not good—at least, not good enough for us or our customers—and that is where our accumulated knowledge of the merit of the goods of different manufacturers makes this store valuable to you.

We guarantee quality, the equipment of this store and stock, and courteous treatment to all.
